2008 List Report Data Base Statistics

Number reporting for 2008: 98

Number reporting for previous year: 91

Number in data base: 251

Number who have reported during past 5 years: 141

Number of new reporters for 2008: 10

Those reporting for 2008:

Gary Allport, Harry Armistead, Elaine Arnold, Stan Arnold, Marcia Balestri, J. Tyler Bell, Wayne Bell, Joy Bowen, Michael Bowen, Dave Brenneman, Gwen Brewer, Jim Brighton, Carol Broderick, Mike Burchett, Rod Burley, Greg Butcher, Sandra Byrd, Joe Byrnes, J.B. Churchill, Steve Collins, Clifford Comeau, Barry Cooper, Dennis Coskren, Jane Coskren, Keith Eric Costley, Jeffrey Culler, Barbara Davis, Phil Davis, Sam Dyke, Fred Fallon, Kathy Fleming, Diane Ford, Stephen Ford, Barbara Gearhart, David Gersten, Kevin Graff, Jim Green, Matt Grey, Ron Gutberlet, Matt Hafner, Joe Hanfman, Elaine Hendricks, Rob Hilton, Mark Hoffman, Emy Holdridge, John Hubbell, Bill Hubick, Kye Jenkins, George Jett, Parke John, Ray Kiddy, Dennis Kirkwood, Jane Kostenko, Ellen Lawler, Mikey Lutmerding, Gail Mackiernan, Nancy Magnusson, Andy Martin, Joel Martin, Carol McCollough, Harvey Mudd, Marion Mudd, Jim Nelson, Lou Nielsen, Paul O'Brien, Peter Osenton, Michael Ostrowski, Robert Ostrowski, Michael O'Sullivan, Helen Patton, Joy Peters, Paul Pisano, Danny Poet, Dave Powell, Nick Pulcinella, Kyle Rambo, Derek Richardson, Bob Ringler, Les Roslund, Nico Sarbanes, Fran Saunders, Norm Saunders, Kurt Schwarz, Fred Shaffer, Lisa Shannon, Jeff Shenot, Don Simonson, Bob Solem, Jo Solem, Jim Stasz, Chuck Stirrat, Warren Strobel, Deborah Terry, June Tveekrem, Mike Walsh, Leo Weigant, Winger West, David Yeany.

Those who last reported in 2004:

Zach Baer, Bill Ellis, Dick Homan, David Mozurkewich, Pat Nistico, Floyd Parks, Wade Stephen, Michael Welch
(These individuals will be dropped from the next List Report unless they submit their list totals for 2009).

This is the 23rd year that the Maryland List Report has been compiled and published. The list was begun in 1986 by Harvey Mudd, was taken on by Phil Davis in the early 1990s, and then was passed on to Norm Saunders with the 2001 List Report. We sincerely hope that the list is taken in the vein in which it is meant—a way to have fun with our listing mania. If some have stopped reporting their lists because they feel the competition has become too intense, please understand that this is for fun and that we would love to see you return. We're in the middle of a generational switch and we hope that all of you, young and not so young, hang in there and watch the evolving skills of so many fine young birders here in Maryland as well as getting into the excitement of seeing who the next members will be of the Maryland 400 Club!

Maryland/DC List Report, 2008

Whenever anyone adds a new species to their MD Life List, that has to rank as an exciting event. But 2008 saw some really interesting species that have to be celebrated as great in their own right, including Sabine's Gull, Allen's Hummingbird, Western Meadowlark, Wilson's Plover, Ash-throated Flycatcher, Lark Sparrow, Snowy Owls in abundance, both Red and White-winged Crossbills, and Common Redpoll.

Additionally, there were some awesome records set or equaled in 2008. First, there are two new members (well, actually the FIRST two members) of the Maryland 400 Club! Congratulations to Paul O'Brien (401 species in MD) and Jim Stasz (400 species). Then, how about George Jett's Big Maryland Photo Year? He snapped 307 species last year in Maryland...pretty amazing when you consider just seeing 300 species is a remarkable challenge in our fair state! I bet you didn't know there was a hard-fought DC Big Year going on last year either, all in an attempt to beat the prior big-year tally of 202 species seen by Paul Pisano in 2003. Gary Allport and Paul Pisano went head to head all year long as both of them broke the previous record, Gary with 214 species and Paul with 210. Finally, Jim Stasz managed to tie his previous MD Big Year record of 330 species, a record not approached since his previous count of 330 species in 2000. Wow, what a year!

In the MD State Life List Category, we now have 95 people from our active reporting list claiming tallies of 300 or better, the so-called 300 Club. Mark Hoffman lags only 1 species out of the new 400 Club, while Paul Pisano, at 387 species, lays claim to the 4th position on the state list. For 2008, we saw fully seven birders breaking 300 species.

Top birder in the District of Columbia is still Rob Hilton, with 271 species, with Paul Pisano just 4 species behind him. As mentioned earlier, Gary Allport saw 214 species in 2008, topping the annual tally and setting a Big DC Year record that is going to be very difficult to break.

The Total Tick Category (a count of all species seen, totaled up across all 23 counties) continues to garner more folks reporting: up to 34 this year. Jim Stasz still sits atop this heap, with his count of 6,192 species, an average of just over 269 species in each county. Bob Ringler and Matt Hafner are in 2nd and 3rd places, both now in the 5,000+ species category. Bill Hubick had the highest Total Tick 2008 count, with 3,233, followed by Jim Green (2,964 species), and by Stan Arnold (2,746 species).

Jim Stasz remains the owner of the County Close-Out Category, with his 182 species seen in each of Maryland's 23 counties. Following him are John Hubbell (138 close-outs) and Bob Ringler (132). Over the course of just this past year, Bill Hubick, Jim Green, and Dave Powell had the most annual close-outs.

The Birds Photographed in Maryland Category continues of interest. George Jett is at the pinnacle, with 374 species, but Mark Hoffman has come out of the closet for the first time to report his tally of 362 species and his vow to go after "some of the easy species I missed earlier." Is this a gauntlet being tossed out? Only time will tell. Accompanying George's amazing 2008 tally of 307 species photographed are Dave Brenneman's count of 119 species and June Tveekrem's tally of 50 species snapped last year.

In the Maryland Yard List Category, Harry Armistead and Jim Stasz continue to hold down the top two positions, with 267 and 219 species, respectively. Jeff Shenot is coming on strong, with 215 species, and he also led the 2008 tally, with 173 species noted in his productive PG County yard. Norm and Fran Saunders are inching closer to the 200-species tally for their yard in West Ocean City. Hopefully 2009 will be the year! The MD Work/Other Category is still topped by Kyle Rambo, with a remarkable 295 species on the grounds of the Patuxent River Naval Air Station, by Patty Craig, who has 266 species at Point Lookout State Park, and by Dave Webb with 224 species at Aberdeen Proving Grounds.

The District of Columbia Home/Work/Other Category is led by Garry Allport, who has 94 species on his NW DC yardlist, followed closely by Norm Saunders, with 89 species from 15 or so years of rambling around the parks of Capital Hill, and by Michael Jennison, with 76 species on his DC yard list.

I'll let you explore the 23 Maryland County list of listers on your own. Watch especially for the 8 or so names that are conspicuous in the way they keep repeating from one county to the next. Some might say they are the oil companys' best friends! And finally I turn the floor over (at last, some of you might say) to the remarks I received from all of you this year. Some of them are quite long while others are very short, but all of them are worth reading!

Gary Allport: As I mentioned in my note last year, I have been keen to see over 200 species in DC in the time I am living here and I was hoping to get my DC Life list to that figure by the end of 2007 but fell well short after barren birding in late Autumn and early Winter. So, with renewed gusto I flung myself into DC birding in early 08 and on into the Spring season. By the middle of May I had crossed the threshold into DC Life 200-dom and was comparing notes with Paul Pisano, in an idle moment in the Maintenance Yard, when he encouraged me to tot up my year list – I can only guess now that he rather wishes he hadn't asked!

Having caught up with some good DC-life birds, such as Cackling Goose, Rough-legged Hawk, Franklin's Gull and Clay-colored Sparrow in the course of the first few months of the year, the DC Year List did show potential. I was a few species ahead of Paul at that time and fully expected him to reel-me-in, but as the year progressed it turned into quite a slugging match between us, spending a lot of enjoyable time in the field together, and me chasing, and luckily mostly seeing, the good birds he has a habit of finding. Paul is one of the most able birders I have had the honor of joining in the field, and his application and tenacity was amazing at times; especially noteworthy was his full day vigil at the end of Hains Point in the pouring rain in TS Hanna to yield Sooty and Common Tern (both birds I still need for DC).

I spent some time travelling in October and fully expected my still extant but slender lead to be overhauled whilst away but my luck held and as November came we were both on the threshold of the MOS-listed previous maximum for the DC Year – Paul's own 202 in 2003 – and unlike 2007 we enjoyed a good late-Fall run of Great Cormorant, Black and then Surf Scoters on Election Day to head into the low 200s.

I was by this stage regretting having missed some relatively easy birds in the early part of the year, such as Louisiana Waterthrush, Woodcock, Horned Lark, Pintail, Redhead, Wild Turkey and Glossy Ibis, all birds which I had not made the effort to see when thoughts of a DC Year List were far from my mind; and Paul had, of course, neatly tidied up nearly all of them. So the last six weeks of the year were quite a head-to-head between us as good birds continued to come – and somehow I managed to keep a few species in hand. The Snow Bunting at Kenilworth Park in late November which we both found together (along with Rob Hilton and Greg Butcher) and the first of three Kumlien's Gulls in DC in three weekends both came at this time and were nominations for "DC Bird of the Year" for me.

My final moments of fortune came on the DC CBC in mid-December. I bumped into a flighty White-winged Scoter (DC Year # 213) on the Anacostia first thing in the morning, then missed a much needed Great Horned Owl at Hickey Hill in the Arboretum, before finally, and somehow typically bittersweet for Paul, he found a pair of Redheads whilst we were at Hains Point together late in the afternoon taking me to 214 for the year. Had it been an equally likely pair of Canvasbacks in that scaup flock – which he needed and I didn't – then we would have ended the year nearer to a dead heat; and that would have been a just and fair outcome in my view.

As it was Paul was able to claw back the-owl-on-the-hill in the last few days of the year but by 31st December I was amazed to find that there was still the narrowest of gaps remaining. Paul and I have not had a chance to review our lists together since the end of the year, and we plan to do so soonest, but I know that there are at least nine and possibly up to twelve species that he saw that I did not in the course of birding in 2008, giving a DC total of 223-226 as our collective DC Year List. And in addition there are at least four species that were seen which we both missed, so 230 was theoretically possible. I believe that it is Dave Czaplak's 1983 total of 240 that stands firmly as the highest ever DC Year List, an amazing achievement, and what with the loss of habitats in DC over the last 25 years, especially wetlands, I don't think that total will ever be surpassed. But, that withstanding, and since this is after all a "Brag Book", I think it is fair to say that we accounted ourselves well in 2008 to set what might be the "Modern Day DC Year" with two lists of 210 and over. Having said all that I don't think either one of us is about to do the same thing again any time soon!

Stan Arnold: The most significant event of our birding year has been our 2008 yard year. We live on a highly suburban acre lot, surrounded by eleven houses on small lots, which are further surrounded by more houses. We are 1.5 miles from BWI Airport and a few hundred yards away from I-97. There is very little woods or water within a mile of our house, so what we get in our yard comes either as flyovers or as a result of the features of our yard, such as six huge southern red oak trees, scores of mature pines, fruit trees, 14 brush piles, and of course feeders. This year we tallied 122 species in or over our property, far eclipsing our previous annual high of 105. The year brought terrific warblers to our yard including Tennessee, Nashville, Cape May, Bay-breasted, Blackburnian, and multiple Wilson's. Other notables were multiple flyover Glossy Ibises, Summer Tanager, and Least Flycatcher. We also had a Bicknell's Thrush for the third year in a row, though it was only around for an hour, unlike last year's bird that stayed for five days. We do not expect to ever have another year like this one.

J. Tyler Bell: My favorite experience of 2008 was doing the SMAS birdathon with Stan Arnold. We covered Calvert County and he must have picked up a dozen new county birds. I got a Virginia Rail to boot! Second favorite was having to go back to Eagle Harbor in PG County to see the Black-headed Gull in August, after having been tricked by the hybrid earlier, and seeing the adult Black-headed Gull interacting with the hybrid. Mom/Dad and junior? We'll never know.

Gwen Brewer: 2008...year of the absent partner (Mr. Big Photo Year). On the plus side, I got some new state birds!

Jim Brighton: I finally got above 100 species in Carroll County this year!!!

Sandra Byrd: Getting to meet and communicate through the MDOsprey with fellow birders. Going on MOS bird trips to Poplar island with fellow birders. Most exciting so far was to finally get to see a Snowy Owl .

J.B. Churchill: 321 isn't breaking any records but it is my all time personal best "big year" totally beating my previous total of 296 by 25 species ! I figure it's not bad for a Western Marylander. Worst miss: Short-eared Owl.

Steve Collins: Maybe I should try this listing game. This is embarrassing ;)

Keith Eric Costley: While attempting to add a Saw-whet Owl to my Baltimore County list, I came face-to-face with a female Barn Owl in a large holly. This life bird sighting will be hard to equal. Finding a Seaside Sparrow in Patterson Park (Baltimore City) was such a thrill - this sparrow was adept at hiding in a small collection of reeds along the short boardwalk.

Jeffrey Culler: I had a great year in 2008 adding 30 new species to my Maryland life list and finally breaking the 300 barrier. Good birding to all in 2009.

Phil Davis: One of these years I'm going to add the male Magnificent Frigatebird that flew over me in the middle of a non-birding volleyball game at Greenbury Point in August during the late 1980s. I'd really like to find some old related records and at least pin down the year, first!

Fred Fallon: Having moved from my long-time home in Bowie, where I spent 30 seasons, to Calvert Co, my old yard list is permanently frozen at 146, while my new yard list is as yet only an anemic 77. I hope to catch up in the next 30 years.

Kathy Fleming: It was a great year to bird in Maryland and I added 41 birds to my state list.

Diane Ford: My best birding experience of 2008 was seeing the Snowy Owl on 12/2, also my birthday. The Snow Buntings were also an added surprise to my state list.

David Gersten: I saw 516 birds in the lower 48 states in 2008 including 38 Life Birds. A bout with Lyme Disease slowed me down in the summer but thankfully only for a few weeks. With work and personal travel to Connecticut, Florida, Washington, Arizona, New Mexico, Michigan and multiple trips to Colorado, Texas and California I had a great time birding throughout the year. Also visited many Maryland, Virginia, DC and Delaware favorites and continued to grow the next generation of birders by regularly bringing my kids to Hughes Hollow, Blue Mash, Layhill Park and Lillipons. I can already say that the birds and birding experiences I will remember most from 2008 are those I shared with my sons and daughter. Helping them see the Saw-whet Owl from the sidewalk in Rockville was a highlight.

Kevin Graff: For your record, average is at 188.6 per county. Correction for Baltimore year list in 2007 was 242, not 241, as I left out Eurasian Wigeon. Not sure what else I should say. but I am getting close to 300 for Baltimore list. Total was 297 as of 2008. Already got WW Crossbill in 2009 #298. #298 not counted on brag book till end of 2009 season. Good chance to get 300 as will do more trips to Hart-Miller Island which helps my Baltimore list to increase every year.

Jim Green: One of my big highlights of the year was participating in the November Rarity's Roundup. It was the first time it did not conflict with my work schedule. It was a blast!

Matt Hafner: Moving back to Maryland for a few months was quite a boost to my county lists! By the end of January, I knew I was leaving, so I made the most of remaining time. I finally passed my mentor, Jim Stasz, in Harford County for the first time, but, as expected, that didn't last too long. Kim and I certainly miss the MD birding community and we hope to be back in the not too distant future. In other news, it only took me 5 months to become the top lister in Marion County, FL!

Joe Hanfman: 2008 was my biggest ABA area year with 526 species. California in January, Texas in April, and June and September to Nome & Gambell, AK greatly contributed to my ABA list.

Elaine Hendricks: I had another very productive and enjoyable year of birding, thanks in large part to taking an unofficial sabbatical leave in the fall. For the first time, I went birding in every county in Maryland. I added 22 species to my state life list and checked off my first county closeouts. I had a good year close to home, too: my Greenbelt Lake list now stands at 122, after adding 14 new species in 2008

Mark Hoffman: 2008 saw the addition of two species to my State list, and puts me just one short of the coveted 400 mark. We will see what species will ultimately claim that honor! Both the adds presented significant identification challenges, which can be both challenging and at times frustrating. It seems we are increasingly relying on the wonder of digital photography to confirm identifications after-the-fact. I did start focusing on my State photo list for the first time, and will see if I can continue to pick up some relatively easy misses over the next couple years.

John Hubbell: My favorite birds of the year were White-winged Crossbills in Garrett County, White-faced Storm-petrel on the overnight pelagic, Mississippi Kites at Piscataway Park, and the Snowy Owl on Assateague.

Bill Hubick: The biggest high of the Maryland birding year was finding the Western Meadowlark on an August Big Day with Jim Brighton, Mikey Lutmerding, and Ron Gutberlet. Other top moments include pummeling the Cape May County opposition at the World Series with the MOS Yellowthroats, my life Common Redpolls finding me in the rain at Fort Smallwood, and finally finding a flock of Evening Grosbeaks in Garrett after a whole winter of searching (and freezing). Of course the number one highlight was getting married to my beautiful wife Becky, and I'm not just saying that to avoid further beatings. Almost as special was seeing Stasz and Co. actually dressed up and presentable at our reception. Enough free beer and anything can happen!

George Jett: Photographing 307 species in Maryland in 2008 was a full-time job last year. It was not a singular effort by any means. It was a state-wide effort, and only able to be achieved with the help of many helpful birders. They will be acknowledged on my website: www.georgejett.net. The effort was in part justified as a fund raising effort to protect the critically endangered Blue-billed Curassow. The American Bird Conservancy and I thank the Maryland and other birders for helping to raise over $10,000 for this critically endangered species in Colombia. Now I am looking forward to staying home and visiting with Gwen. She has the patience of Job to put up with me.

Ray Kiddy: Allegany County life species added in 2008: Greater White-fronted Goose, Carolina Chickadee, Eared Grebe and Long-eared Owl

Jane Kostenko: The highlight of 2008 for me was getting an early Christmas present of Allen's Hummingbird on Christmas Eve!

Carol McCollough: This was a slow year in Maryland, partly because we went to Oregon for the Shakespeare Festival in July, and added 45 lifers there. Dipper on the first day, yes!

Peter Osenton: This year was my 2nd best year ever in my yard (in the 11 years I've lived there), where I recorded 101 species, just 2 species from tying my best year ever. In my Pin Oak "tree list" (a large Pin Oak off my back deck) I added 3 new birds perching on that tree to this list. A nice male Bay-breasted Warbler, on May 23rd, a Pileated Woodpecker on June 10th, and a Hermit Thrush on November 30th.

Michael Ostrowski: The highlights of the year for me were seeing the Snowy Owl at Assateague after a long hike, and finding a Greater White-fronted Goose in my local patch.

Robert Ostrowski: My favorite experiences this year were finding many warblers like Bay-breasted, Blue-winged, Tennessee, Blackburnian, and N. Waterthrush in the "woods" that I played in growing up, and standing on the coast of the bay at Sandy Point in the wake of Tropical Storm Hanna, watching the many terns (including Sooty) and gulls while the sun was setting just beyond the last clouds of the storm.

Michael O'Sullivan: I live in a residential area on the east side of Columbia, near the intersection of Snowden River Parkway and Rt. 108. We maintain several feeders, including suet, thistle, safflower, and sunflower seed, as well as a hummingbird feeder. This is my first year for maintaining lists of what I saw. My great experience is how truly helpful all the experienced birders I met are, including Stan Arnold, Joel Martin, Bonnie Ott, Jeff Culler, Kurt Schwarz, Joe Hanfman, Nancy Magnusson, and Jo Solem, among others. All took the time to help me with locating and IDing many species and telling me good locations for observing new birds. Armed with all the help and knowledge they imparted to me, 2009 should bring me a much more inclusive list.

Paul Pisano: This year I decided to work hard on my DC year list. I'm not sure I started the year with that in mind, but after birding with Gary Allport for a few weekends, it became apparent that we were both working on such a list. This ultimately developed into a fun, friendly competition, with each of us calling the other when we'd find something new, and doing what we could to get the other person on a good bird. In the end, Gary beat me by 4 birds, but it wasn't for a lack of trying. It was more a matter of "right place/right time" for him on a few key species. The highlights for me were my 2 DC additions - Sedge Wren and Snow Bunting, both at Kenilworth Park, and hearing a Virginia Rail respond to a flock of Canada Geese as they flew over at Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens. Hains Point was more productive this year than usual, with Glossy Ibis, Black-bellied Plover, Sanderling, Franklin's Gull, Sooty Tern, and Clay-colored Sparrow being some of the good birds seen there.

Danny Poet: In 2009 I am going to have to work harder in Queen Anne's County. That $4.00 a gallon gas last summer put a hurting on all of us. Lets hope it does not go that high this summer. Great Experiences The Northern Gannets coming in close to shore at Kent Narrows in Queen Anne's County in March; the trips out to Poplar Island; American Avocet as a Talbot County bird and other shorebirds; the special trip out to Poplar Island in early December for the Snowy Owl. Thanks to the staff out there for letting us out there for that and to Dan Haas for arranging the trip that I went out on. Thanks to Les Roslund for hosting Pine Siskins last spring.

Derek Richardson: I added 14 species to my yard list in 2008, the top highlights being my first-ever Cape May Warbler (5/3) and a male Rusty Blackbird (12/20, yard bird #100! [erroneously reported by me as #99 on MD Osprey — I'd forgotten to count Palm Warbler as a yard bird!]). Here is my full list of new yard birds: Blue-gray Gnatcatcher (4/27), Blue-winged Warbler (4/27), Black-throated Blue Warbler (5/2), White-eyed Vireo (5/3), Yellow Warbler (5/3), Cape May Warbler (5/3), Bay-breasted Warbler (5/3), Blackburnian Warbler (5/7), Blue Grosbeak (5/9), Pine Warbler (6/22), Common Nighthawk (9/21), Palm Warbler (10/4), Rusty Blackbird (12/20), and Ring-billed Gull (12/21). I also had the privilege to join Chan Robbins on his Breeding Bird Survey in the spring and, during the fall, participate in checking his mist nets for birds and watch as he measured, weighed, and banded newcomers. Awesome!

Les Roslund: The numbers on this report do not include the sighting that was my most thrilling find for 2008. That was of the Bar-headed Goose that showed up along my Talbot County driveway on October 23. Yeah, I know I cannot count it, but it certainly was fun to see. Second place in the fun category was finding a Talbot County Ross's Goose on the very last day of the year.

Nico Sarbanes: My long-awaited first sighting of a Northern Shrike at Chino Farms was a definite highlight, and the Snowy Owl on Assateague wasn't too bad either! My three goals for 2009: 1) See at least 250 species in MD in 2009, 2) Get my MD life list up to 300 species., and 3) Get my "Species photographed in MD" list up to 250. Many thanks to all the birders who were nice enough to drive me around this past year. Only a few more months until I get my license! New Sightings: Too many to list! Highlights included: Snowy Owl, Common Redpoll, Northern Shrike, Painted Bunting, Eared Grebe, Upland Sandpiper, and King Eider.

Kurt Schwarz: The Other List comprises species that have bounced off my Anne Arundel County work place. Two species added this year were European Starling and Wilson's Warbler. I am happy to report that one of the two Wilson's Warblers survived the encounter. I am not so happy that the three Starlings did not even hit the building, let alone perish. Alas, they diverted in time. The yard list added Osprey and Herring Gull for 2008, not bad for inland! I did not take a significant number of photos this year, and the number of USABLE ones was considerably less. No total submitted.

Fred Shaffer: Highlights of 2008 - My highlights from 2008 include getting great views of a Bridled Tern on the August pelagic, seeing the possible Black-headed Gull x Ring-billed Gull hybrid in Eagle Harbor, getting great views of multiple Iceland Gulls, seeing one of the Assateague Snowy Owls, and seeing the Allen's Hummingbird.

Jeff Shenot: This was a great year, although my highlight was doing volunteer work with a shorebird research project in DE. As a result I missed two weeks in MD during the peak of migration in May, but it was an incredible learning experience. For 2008 I had several big surprises to my yard life list (YCNH, WHIB and MIKI), and I finally tabulated a "county" list for my home county (Prince Georges)! Although I've kept good records for ten years, the only list I've kept til now was a yard list. So in 2009, I plan to compile my "MD" list, and hope to see more of our beautiful state in search of the many species I've missed on the state checklist!

Jo Solem: Phil Davis advised 11/4/08 that Ross's Goose had been accepted so Howard Co. species can be raised by one to 293.

Jim Stasz: I did not plan to do a Big Year. It just happened while I was looking for County Birds. I did plan to stay ahead of Matt in Harford. It took a lot of birding in Harford to do it. I may just have to do some more in Harford this year to build a better lead. Highlights were a Neotropical Cormorant in May spotted by Ed Boyd on the Potomac near Harper's Ferry, a White-faced Ibis in April at the Berlin WWTP spotted by Matt Hafner, having at least one more Calliope Hummingbird in my yard in October, and finding my own White-winged Dove at Truitt's Landing in August.

Chuck Stirrat: Yard - 13318 Hunt Ridge, Ellicott City. 1 acre mixed hardwood backs up to stream valley (minor tributary of Middle Patuxent River).

Warren Strobel: Marching steadily toward the 300 club! Took care of two nemesis birds in 2008: Pine Siskin and Northern Shrike. 2009 is already shaping up to be interesting. Good birding to all this year!

Debby Terry: Please update my Baltimore County Life Total for 2008 to 294 birds. With a phone call and reports on MDosprey I was able to see a White Pelican and Franklin's Gull in Baltimore County. It is a fun game.

June Tveekrem: Most enjoyable bird sighting was seeing a Great Blue Heron snatch a fish off a fisherman's hook. The heron flew away with the fish while the fisherman reeled in an empty hook. That bird knew where to get a free meal! (Centennial Lake, Howard County)

Leo Weigant: Mourning Warbler and "Lawrence's Warbler" in Garrett Co. were good finds, but a Least Bittern flying by in bright sunlight on Hart-Miller Island may have been the most thrilling. My new yard list reflects moving to a new home. Tennessee, yellow-throated, and black-throated Blue warblers in the first few weeks got me off to a good start.

David Yeany: On November 15, 2008, I participated in the Worcester County Rarity Roundup for the first time. Now, as a graduate student, I am not afforded much time for birding excursions far afield nor do I truly have the resources at this time. However, I was invited by J.B. Churchill to participate, and it turned out to be a Maryland birding weekend I would never forget.

After banding Northern Saw-whet Owls in Garrett County until 1:00AM, we headed west from Cumberland by 2:00AM on November 14 with a plan to reach the eastern shore by daybreak to have a good day of birding before the roundup and possibly make gains on our birding goals for the year. For J.B. this meant a Maryland Big Year, and for me this meant finally reaching 300 life birds - a goal which I'd had for two years.

Reaching Rumbly Point near Irish Grove around dawn, I added my first lifer of the weekend - Sedge Wren. From there we headed to Vessey Orchard in Somerset Co. and found the reported Lark Sparrow. My next life bird came at Truitt's Landing around midday and it was a calling King Rail. From Truitt's we headed to Scott's Landing to look for sharp-tailed sparrows and we were not disappointed, finding both species and Nelson's Sharp-tailed Sparrow being another lifer.

My final life bird of the day came at South Point in the form of the local Eurasian-collared Dove. Five lifers in Maryland in one day was great, I thought, but still I was just one species shy of 300. Little did I know what was in store the following day. As it turned out, I would score my 300th life bird while counting in our territory for the roundup. While I was scanning a flock of about 3,200 Snow Geese on Ironshire Station Road, out popped a Ross's Goose - number 300! I was elated but the day wasn't over yet, and with Maryland's top birders on the prowl more rarities were to be had.

I was able to get three more life birds that day with Cave Swallow and Brewer's Blackbird being found at another location in our Berlin territory, and my final life bird being the reported Snowy Owl on Assateague Island. At the end of the weekend I had gained nine life birds and surpassed my goal of 300. It was truly a Maryland birding weekend to remember as great birding was had and I became acquainted with some of Maryland's finest birders!

Well, that wraps it up for another year! Thanks all of you for your submissions and I wish Good Birding to each and every one of you in 2009!
